

White House Keys

Don Henry

She loaded up his hair dye and their little dog too
They were wavin' goodbye as the whirly bird blew Me and fast Eddie were ready when we heard the sound
The former head honcho never heard 'em hit the ground...yeah, and...

CHORUS

The White House Keys fell out of his pocket
We thought that we'd unlock it this Saturday night
Get a bunch of homeless in the oval office
And raid the refrigerator til the morning light

They'll wonder how we got these they thought he turned 'em in
But he made a couple copies in case they re-elected him
Me and fast Eddie are ready if they hit us hard We'll just flash our voter registration cards and say...hey...
(chorus)

BRIDGE

Well we showed them keys to every Tom, Dick and Harry It bought us all the drinks, all the drugs and all the women we could carry
But early in the morning I noticed that the red key was missin' Yeah, the fate of the world is probably is probably hanging from the neck of a beautician

We went down the Good Will and bought some jackets and ties
Got a shower for a good deal at the neighborhood "Y"
Me and fast Eddie are ready for the photograph
Sunday morning the Washington Post will ask us why...'cause...
(chorus)
